Ivar Gets His Own Comic ... And It's About Time!

A delay of six months probably means nothing to a man who has the ability to travel through time... but for his many fans, it obviously meant a great deal. According to Valiant's Marty Stever, "When the debut of Timewalker was pushed back from February to August, the Valiant offices were besieged with calls and letters demanding that Timewalker get his own book now!"

Those fans will be pleased to hear that Timewalker is back on Valiant's schedule for next month, following hot on the heels of the conclusion of The Chaos Effect, in which Ivar, the Timewalker, plays a part.

Ivar is a major part of the Valiant family—quite literally. One of his brothers is Armstrong, of Archer & Armstrong fame; the other is the Eternal Warrior. He possesses the unique ability to travel through time—but he has little control over his final destination. This leads to a variety of misadventures, many of which involve other Valiant heroes.

"I'm excited about this new book," Timewalker writer Bob Hall said. "I've been playing with the character concept for over six months, and I'm really enjoying it. This is the first time that I've had so much control over a charcater's initial development. I'm closely associated with Shadowman, and although it may be 'my book,' I had to deal with a premise that had been set up through issue five. Now I'm starting with a new character that's all mine, although there are complications because Timewalker is so important to Valiant's overall continuity."

Bob Hall is joined by penciller Don Perlin and inker Gonzalo Mayo, both longtime Valiant veterans. Their first Timewalker story takes Ivar deep into Nazi Germany, where he must infiltrate the Gestapo's most heavily guarded prison to free a man who might otherwise give Hitler the ultimate weapon. A month later, he jaunts into the middle of one of the greatest military disasters in British history—the Charge of the Light Brigade. Timewalker #1, a $2.50 comic, is scheduled for August release.

5x40=Zero!

What happens when you take a landmark five-issue miniseries like Zero Hour: Crisis In Time and multiply its effects throughout the forty titles of the DC Universe? Zero, that's what!

Zero Month follows Zero Hour this August—and no, Zero Month isn't a new forty-part miniseries. But then again, perhaps it is!... Zero Month, which begins in mid-August and continues into mid-September, offers fans an opportunity to sample the diversity of the DC Universe as every DC Universe title for that month is a zero issue.

"Our assignment was clear," executive editor Mike Carlin said. "Make this the best month ever to join the DC Universe for anyone who is not a DC reader already and the best month ever for reliving and enjoying some of the events that made an existing reader a DC Universe fan. Plus, give both audiences some facts and insights about the DC Universe that haven't been revealed before."

Some books will undergo major shake-ups, making these zero issues in effect a starting point for those titles. Other books will present memorable confrontations, significant plot events, or retrospective stories that will flesh out the hero or group's background. "In essence, we're putting out a great big comics welcome mat for the DC Universe," KC Carlson, editor of Zero Hour: Crisis In Time and other books, said.

Not every book carrying the DC bullet will take part in Zero Month: none of the Vertigo or Milestone books are a part of the event, nor are any miniseries that were underway at the time of Zero Hour: Crisis in Times, nor Batman Adventures, which ties in to the animated series. For the forty books that are a part of Zero Month, though, the zero issues will take the place of regularly-numbered issues; once Zero Month is completed, the titles will return to their regular numbering sequence.

Primal Force, Starman, Manhunter, Fate, and REBELS '94 are all-new series that debut with zero issues in August; each is an outgrowth of Zero Hour. One seven-issue miniseries, Xenobrood, will also debut with a zero issue, followed by numbers one through six.

Primal Force is a new superteam whose members consist of Tornado, Jack O'Lantern, the Golem, Claw, and the new hero Meridian. The five are brought together by Dr. Mist in order to battle an arcane evil, the Cataclysm. Steven T. Seagle, Ken Hooper, and Barb Kaalberg introduce Primal Force on August 18th.

Starman follows the exploits of the rebellious son of the original Starman; the son is forced to take on the superhero mantle when his brother, David, is killed in one of his first outings as Starman. The series is written by James Robinson and illustrated by Tony Harris and Wade von Grawbadger; the zero issue is scheduled for August 25th release.

Fate stars a soldier of fortune, Jared Stevens, who comes upon the helm of Doctor Fate and reshapes it into a deadly golden blade that is more suited as a magic totem for a hero of his sort. This new version of Doctor Fate is the creation of John Francis Moore, Anthony Williams, and Andrew Lanning; his debut occurs on September 1st.

REBELS '94 is an outgrowth of LEGION '94, one of the casualties of Zero Hour. Vril Dox, Stealth, Lobo, and their teammates are on the run, pursued by former allies who have been duped by the LEGION's tyrannical new leader, Lyri Dox. Tom Feyer, Arnie Jorgenson, and James Pascoe handle the creative honors on this new series, which debuts on September 1st.

Manhunter introduces a new hero bearing a familiar name in the DC Universe. Musician Chase Lawler accidentally creates havoc in the DC Universe when he unleashes a savage primal archetype; now he must thwart the thing's evil mission by hunting down the creature's intended victims before it can find them, saving them if he can... or killing them if he has no other choice. Steven Grant and Vince Giarrano present the new Manhunter on September 8th.

Finally, Xenobrood is a seven-issue superteam miniseries created by Doug Moench, Tomm Coker, and Keith Aiken. The powerful quartet of elemental heroes is created when Dr. Zachariah Leight discovers four mysterious crystals in a forgotten tomb... but it soon becomes evident that others have plans for those crystals—and their plans don't include Leight. Xenobrood #0 is scheduled for September 1st release.

"This is a chance to renew acquaintances with old friends and to meet some really interesting new people as well," Mike Carlin added. And judging by the advance interest in Zero Hour, already pegged by many as one of the biggest events of 1994, there'll be a lot of fans eager to zero in on this unique comics event.

Badrock Fans Won't Take This Series for Granite

Badrock, the ever-popular muscle of the Youngblood team who is the focus of one of the most intriguing storylines of Rob Liefeld's revitalized Youngblood, is going solo this fall. Keith Giffen, Todd Nauck, Danny Miki, and Mario Alquiza handle the creative honors on Badrock and Company, a six-issue miniseries that pairs Badrock with some of the most popular heroes in the Image Universe, including Freak Force and Stormwatch. The first issue presents a battle royale as Badrock tangles with Pitt; the titanic conflict occure when alien twin brothers kidnap Pitt's young friend Timmy in order to force Pitt to do battle with Badrock in order to settle a bet between the twins. Badrock and Company #1, a $2.50 comic with a Rob Liefeld cover, is scheduled for mid-September release.

Return of the Revenge of Reggie

A few months ago, Archie spotlighted sometimes-mischievous, sometimes-malevolent Reggie in his own one-shot, Reggie's Revenge. Well, at least it was originally envisioned as a one-shot—but the response to this comic was so overwhelmingly positive that Archie's original bad boy is back in the second issue of what is now a regular series! Reggie's Revenge #2 will feature 48 pages of classic story and art, highlighted by an original Reggie tale. The creators featured in this issue comprise a virtual who's who of Archie talent, including Rex Lindsey, Dan Parent, and Frank Doyle. Reggie's Revenge #2, a $2 comic, is savailable now.

Comic Images Tests Olivia's Mettle With Chromium Cards

Olivia de Berardinis, quite possibly the best-known living illustrator of the sensual female figure, has already been the subject of three trading card series from Comic Images. In August, Olivia and Comic Images will join forces again to create a "best of" series highlighting Olivia's most popular work from her three earlier series, supplementing those pieces with all new never-before-seen paintings. Furthermore, to make these "best of" cards more appealing to fans who already have the original trading card series, the entire Best of Olivia series is being presented in the extremely popular all-chromium-card format.

The Best of Olivia All-Chromium Collection includes eighty cards, nine of which have never been released before; the card back will include commentary by Olivia. The series is supplemented with six omnichrome chase cards, described by Comic Images as "an opulent, pearlized, never-before-seen superior quality card." Other chase cards and bonuses include five hundred specially designed autograph cards, a three-card "Ladies In Red" subset of new art, a limited edition numbered medallion card, miniature press sheets, and an exclusive six-card uncut sheet. The Best of Olivia All-Chromium Collection, scheduled for August release, is priced at $2.75 per eight-card pack.

An Ultraversatile Reference

Feel like you need a program to help you keep all your Ultraverse heroes, villains, and storylines straight? Well, the friendly folks at Malibu have put together just the thing: a forty-eight-page compendium that offers all the information necessary to fully understand and enjoy the Ultraverse. Ultraverse Year One is described by Malibu as "the official handbook of the Ultraverse, taken exclusively from the company's top secret story bible..." Ultraverse Year One includes a full index of the first year of Ultraverse books; cover reproductions of each issue sans logo and cover copy; a complete character index, including all crossovers and first appearances; an index of storylines; a continuity timeline; future plots; and additional "hidden" information to enhance your enjoyment of this superhero universe. Ultraverse Year One, a $4.95 full-color comic with a cover by Norm Breyfogle, is scheduled for September release.

CSNsider

Marvel Entertainment Group and the folks responsible for Universal Studios theme parks have reached an agreement to bring Marvel characters to their parks; it's possible that, later on, they would develop an entire area of the park featuring rides, shows, and attractions devoted to Marvel concepts... Within the next six months, you'll probably see virtually every major comics company licensing its characters to a phone card company... As CSNsider has been reporting for a while now, a comic book version of X-Files is on the way—and Topps is the company that's won the rights to bring the cult-favorite series to comics... HarperCollins has secured the rights to create a series of books based on Magic: The Gathering... George Perez is creating a new series for Image entitled Gladiator; look for an initial twelve-issue run, to be followed by a second series if the first does well... SkyBox is working on a fully painted Superman: Man of Steel Platinum Trading Card Series to be published in the oversized Sandman-card format... At long last, The Cartoon History of the Universe Volume II is slated for trade paperback release late this year!... Fleer has contracted with the Hildebrandt Brothers to supply the art for every one of their Marvel Masterpieces trading card series slated for fall release... Todd McFarlane has announced that Spawn #s 19 & 20 will be released in October, making the book bi-weekly for a couple of issues... Tekno-Comix' first titles will be Leonard Nimoy's Primortals, a science-fiction title, and Neil Gaiman's Mr. Hero—The Newmatic Man, the story of a steam-powered Victorian Robot and his human companion in modern times; look for them in November, followed by Gene Roddenberry's Lost Universe (written by Majel Barrett Roddenberry and D.C. Fontana) in December.....

An Omen From Ominous

Wondering when you'll get a chance to meet some of the other characters who were named as a part of the Ominous Press roll-out—characters like Giantkiller, Insidious, Sunder, and the Nightbeast? Wonder no more! Brute & Babe: Omen, a 32-page comic by Bart Sears and Mark Pennington, opens up the Ominous Universe, introducing these characters and others in a story that also has Mael and Auoro separated by Dramorg, leading to their struggle to find one another—and to find out more about themselves. Brute & Babe: Omen, a $2.50 comic, is scheduled for September release.

Jonah Hex: The Mojo The Merrier

Last year, Joe R. Lansdale and Timothy Truman proved that the Western wasn't quite dead—although the characters who populated that Western might be! Jonah Hex: Two Gun Mojo, a five-issued Vertigo limited series, met with enthusiastic support from fans who were eager to see just how Lansdale and Truman might merge the Western and horror genres. The series was so successful, in fact, that early issues quickly became hard to come by, and new readers have had a great deal of trouble tracking down the entire series.

TM&©1994 DC Comics

Those unlucky readers will soon be able to enjoy the whole story at an affordable price, though, because Vertigo is collecting it all into a single 160-page volume this August. Timothy Truman supplies an all-new painted cover for this volume. This affordable trade paperback will make it possible for all readers to enjoy the first Jonah Hex Vertigo series prior to the impending release of the second series, Jonah Hex: Riders of the Worm and Such, also created by Lansdale and Truman. Jonah Hex: Two Gun Mojo, a $12.95 trade paperback, is scheduled for August 16th release.

Aladdin Is a Lad In Search of Adventure

His Disney film was one of the biggest animated motion pictures ever. His direct-to-video release, The Return of Jafar, is setting videocassette sales records. And now he's ready to bring that success to comic books courtesy of Marvel. Aladdin #1, written by Lee Nordling and illustrated by Anna-Marie Cool, D. Reguard, and Jeff Albrecht. the original series offers new adventures of Aladdin, Jasmine, Genie, Abu, and carpet; in the first issue, Aladdin must undertake three difficult tasks to prove that Aladdin is worthy of being allowed to live. Aladdin #1, a $1.50 comic, is scheduled for August 18th release.

Animus-ity

The events of the major DC crossover series Zero Hour are going to have significant effects on virtually every DC hero—but Anima finds Zero Hour to be particularly troubling, since it separates her from Animus. While the powerful Animus has to fight for survival against the forces of the Nameless One, Anima is on her own as she tries to reenter Arkana to confront Eris, Animus' antithesis. The action takes place in Anima #7, which is guest-illustrated by Buzz, the artist of the instant-sellout Vengeance of Vampirella #1; look for it on August 4th.

Jest In Time

"This title is a cross between Rockford Files, Indiana Jones, and The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy, and is created to be a good, fun read." That's how Triumphant Comics describes Tales of the Royal Jester, a new science fiction adventure series by Jim Higgins and Garrett Bertner. The series chronicles the misadventures of space rogue and tramp freight pilot Krane Jammer and his robot companion York as they travel the spaceways, crossing paths with one challenge after another. In the first issue, Krane and York head into the galactic void aboard their ship The Royal Jester to find a missing bauble known as "Jewel of the Eye of the god who Watches Everything Or At Least Everything He Can See." As you might expect, the adventure doesn't unfold quite the way Jammer and York might have liked. Tales of the Royal Jester #1, a $2.50 comic, is scheduled for August 4th release.

A Brigade of WildCATs?

It's a superteam bonanza! Beginning in Brigade #11, Brigade comes face to face with Jim Lee's WildCATs in a two-part adventure—but are they working together or battling one another? Both teams are trying to prevent the Japanese criminal warlord Dojo from carrying out his evil plans, forcing them to form an uneasy alliance. The teams soon split up into smaller groups as Warcry is forced to choose between aiding Kayo and his allegiance to the Sorayama Clan, while Battlestone and Emp join forces to confront Dojo. The action begins in Brigade #11, courtesy of Eric Stephenson, Anthony Winn, and Mario Alquiza, and concludes in September's Brigade #12; each book is priced at $2.50.

Where Wolf? In Miniseries, That's Where!

The star of the new miniseries Dreadwolf is already a familiar hero in the Lightning Comics Universe. "Dreadwolf is the longest-running 'guest appearance hero' in the Lightning Universe," writer Joe Zyskowski said. "Dreadwolf's origin is in Bloodfire #3... Since then, he has made appearances in Judgment Day #1 and Fang #s 1-3. " Now the feral hero is ready to go solo—which is just what he does in Dreadwolf #1. The series' star is Douglas Patrick Reagan, who was injected with the same formula responsible for Bloodfire; in his case, though, the unstable compound caused him to transform into a wolflike beast. Dreadwolf #1, a full-color $3.50 comic written by Zyskowski and illustrated by Paul Abrams, is scheduled for August release.

The Green-ing of the DC Universe

Ever since the conclusion of the Emerald Twilight story in Green Lantern #50, fans have debated Hal Jordan's dramatic change in character from hero to killer. Of course, there's no certainty as to which Hal Jordan might exist after the dramatic time-altering events of Zero Hour—but everyone will find out with the release of Green Lantern #0, one of the forty zero issues DC is releasing in August as the finale of the Zero Hour storyline. In this issue by Ron Marz, Darryl Banks, and Romeo Tanghal, Hal Jordan returns to Earth to take control of the power ring once again. Soon it's Jordan versus Kyle Rayner... and it appears that Jordan's expertise gives them edge over the novice ring-wielder. Once Hal Jordan regains the power ring, will he once again be a hero... or is he destined to remain an emerald-powered übermensch? We'll all find out on August 25th, when Green Lantern #0 hits the stands.

McDaniel Makes a Pact to Illustrate ShadowHawk

Walter McDaniel, who has already worked with Jim Valentino on the limited series The Pact, has signed on as artist of the first issue of the new ShadowHawk story arc beginning in ShadowHawk #12. This six-issue story arc features loads of guest stars, including Chapel, WildCATs, The Others, Supreme, Spawn, and various heroes from the 1963 series. It will also feature a variety of illustrators: following McDaniel will be Chance Wolf on ShadowHawk #13, after which Jim Valentino will return to pencil ShadowHawk #14, joining forces with inkers Randy Queen and Don Simpson. The storyline pits ShadowHawk against the racist killer Hawk's Shadow; the first issue marks the first time that Image's two HIV-infected heroes have joined forces. Shadowhawk #12, a $1.95 comic that kicks off the six-part story arc, is available now.

Doc Savage Fans Win By a Hair

At long last, Graphitti Designs is offering a deluxe print of one of the most demanded of all James Bama Doc Savage paintings: the cover to the first Bantam Paperback, The Man of Bronze. However, is something seems a little different, there's a good reason: this isn't the version that was used on the cover, but a slightly different version-with normal hair. Bantam requested that the painting be changed prior to publication, adding the familiar Bama Doc Savage "skullcap" hairstyle—so this unique painting, which even more closely resembles Doc Savage model Steve Holland, is a bit of illustration history. Graphitti is making two versions of the print available; the standard unsigned edition, limited to 850 copies, is priced at $29.95, while the signed edition, limited to 150 copies, is priced at $125. As with all collectibles of this sort, you should reserve this print with the friendly folks at your local comic shop—and tell 'em that CSN sent you!

Back to the Egg

In Topps' first two Jurassic Park spinoff miniseries, Dr. Grant and his friends have been only partly successful in their efforts to stop the velociraptors from menacing civilization. In the third series, Jurassic Park: Raptors Hijack, Grant and crew had better hope they're absolutely successful—because if they aren't, the end result could be thousands of raptors overrunning the Americas!

Two raptors are loose in the Colombian-Brazilian jungle—one of them an egg-carrying female, the other her mate. If Grant and company can't recover them, the result is going to be a velociraptor repopulation that will threaten mankind. Grant's people aren't the only ones hunting the raptors, though; Dr. Fischer is also on the raptors' trail... and he has much more ominous plans for them if he finds them. Jurassic Park: Raptors Hijack #1, a $2.50 comic written by Steve Englehart and illustrated by Neil Vokes and Paul Fricke, is scheduled for July 14th release.
